

He broke her jaw in two places. She lost three teeth.

Rent was due. She told Marcus that night. He'd been drinking since noon.
Said she was stupid. Said she was useless. She tried to explain.

She didn't. Manager found her. Three write-ups already. Walked her out in front of everyone. Jean worked there four years.

You took twenty from the register. Girl wasn't looking. Quick hands. Gone. You forgot about it by lunch.

Lost the apartment. Lost custody of her daughter eight months later. State took Amaya. Jean never got her back.

You spent that twenty on a burrito and a coke. You don't know Jean. You'll never meet Amaya. But you did that. And you can't undo it. You owe a debt to people you can't find for damage you can't fix. And one day you'll stand before the One who saw it all.

"But the tax collector stood at a distance. He would not even look up to heaven, but beat his breast and said, 'God, have mercy on me, a sinner.' I tell you that this man went home justified."
